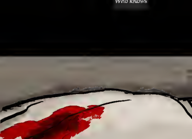
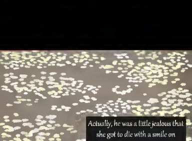
Did the boy feel any pity for her?

Who knows

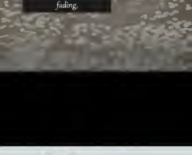


He was dying, therefore, he didn't have any energy for sympathy.



Actually, he was a little jealous that she got to die with a smile on the side of the heavens.

While his consciousness was fading,



He looked at Ja-Myeong

TMP...

TMP

It was strange but

TMP

The boy no longer feared his approach.

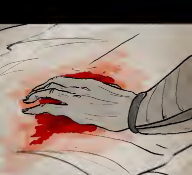
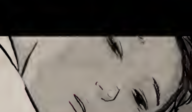
FALL

Myo-Jin felt he heard ja Myeong's long sigh.

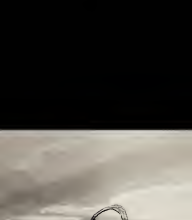


His hand was warm and his wound was no longer hurting him.

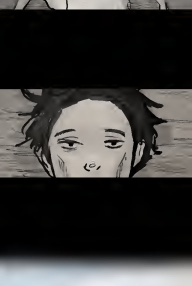


'What is he doing...killing me and healing me at the same time. What a jerk...' or so he wanted to say but his strength ran out.

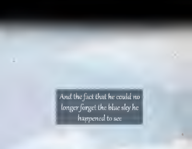
And he closed his eyes.



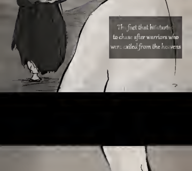
What happened after isn't important.



The fact that he woke up in Oni again



And the fact that he could no longer forget the blue sky he happened to see



The fact that he starts to chase after warriors who were called from the heavens and the fact that, although excruciatingly slow, he was getting there

As I said before, none of that really is important.

Because.

Even now he Still

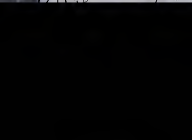
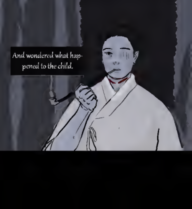
long for the blue sky

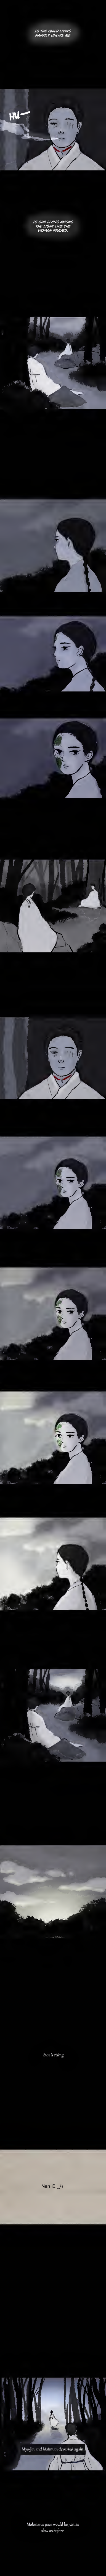


Even now he longs for it.

He recalled a moment of his life in Oni



And wondered what happened to the child.



IS THE CHILD LIVING HAPPILY UNLIKE ME
HU—
IS SHE LIVING AMONG THE LIGHT LIKE THE WOMAN PRAYED.
Sun is rising.
Nan-E _4
Myo-Jin and Makman departed again
Makman's pace would be just as slow as before.

She had a destination

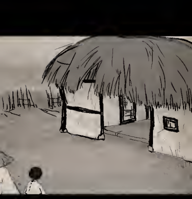
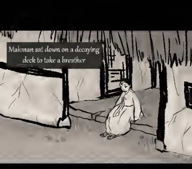
But she refused to reach there

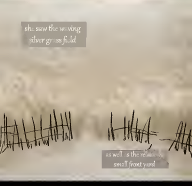
When they saw something.





Makman sat down on a decaying deck to take a breather

But after sitting down



she saw the waving silver grass field
as well as the small front yard

She wondered how her life would have been if she was born in a small farming family

Her dad coming back from a long day of farming
Her mother who was coming back from harvesting vegetables
And her younger brother she might have had

"Let us rest here for a few days"

She told the man.
